

Master of Guidance and Counselling

Read toda for tomorrow

jcu.edu.au

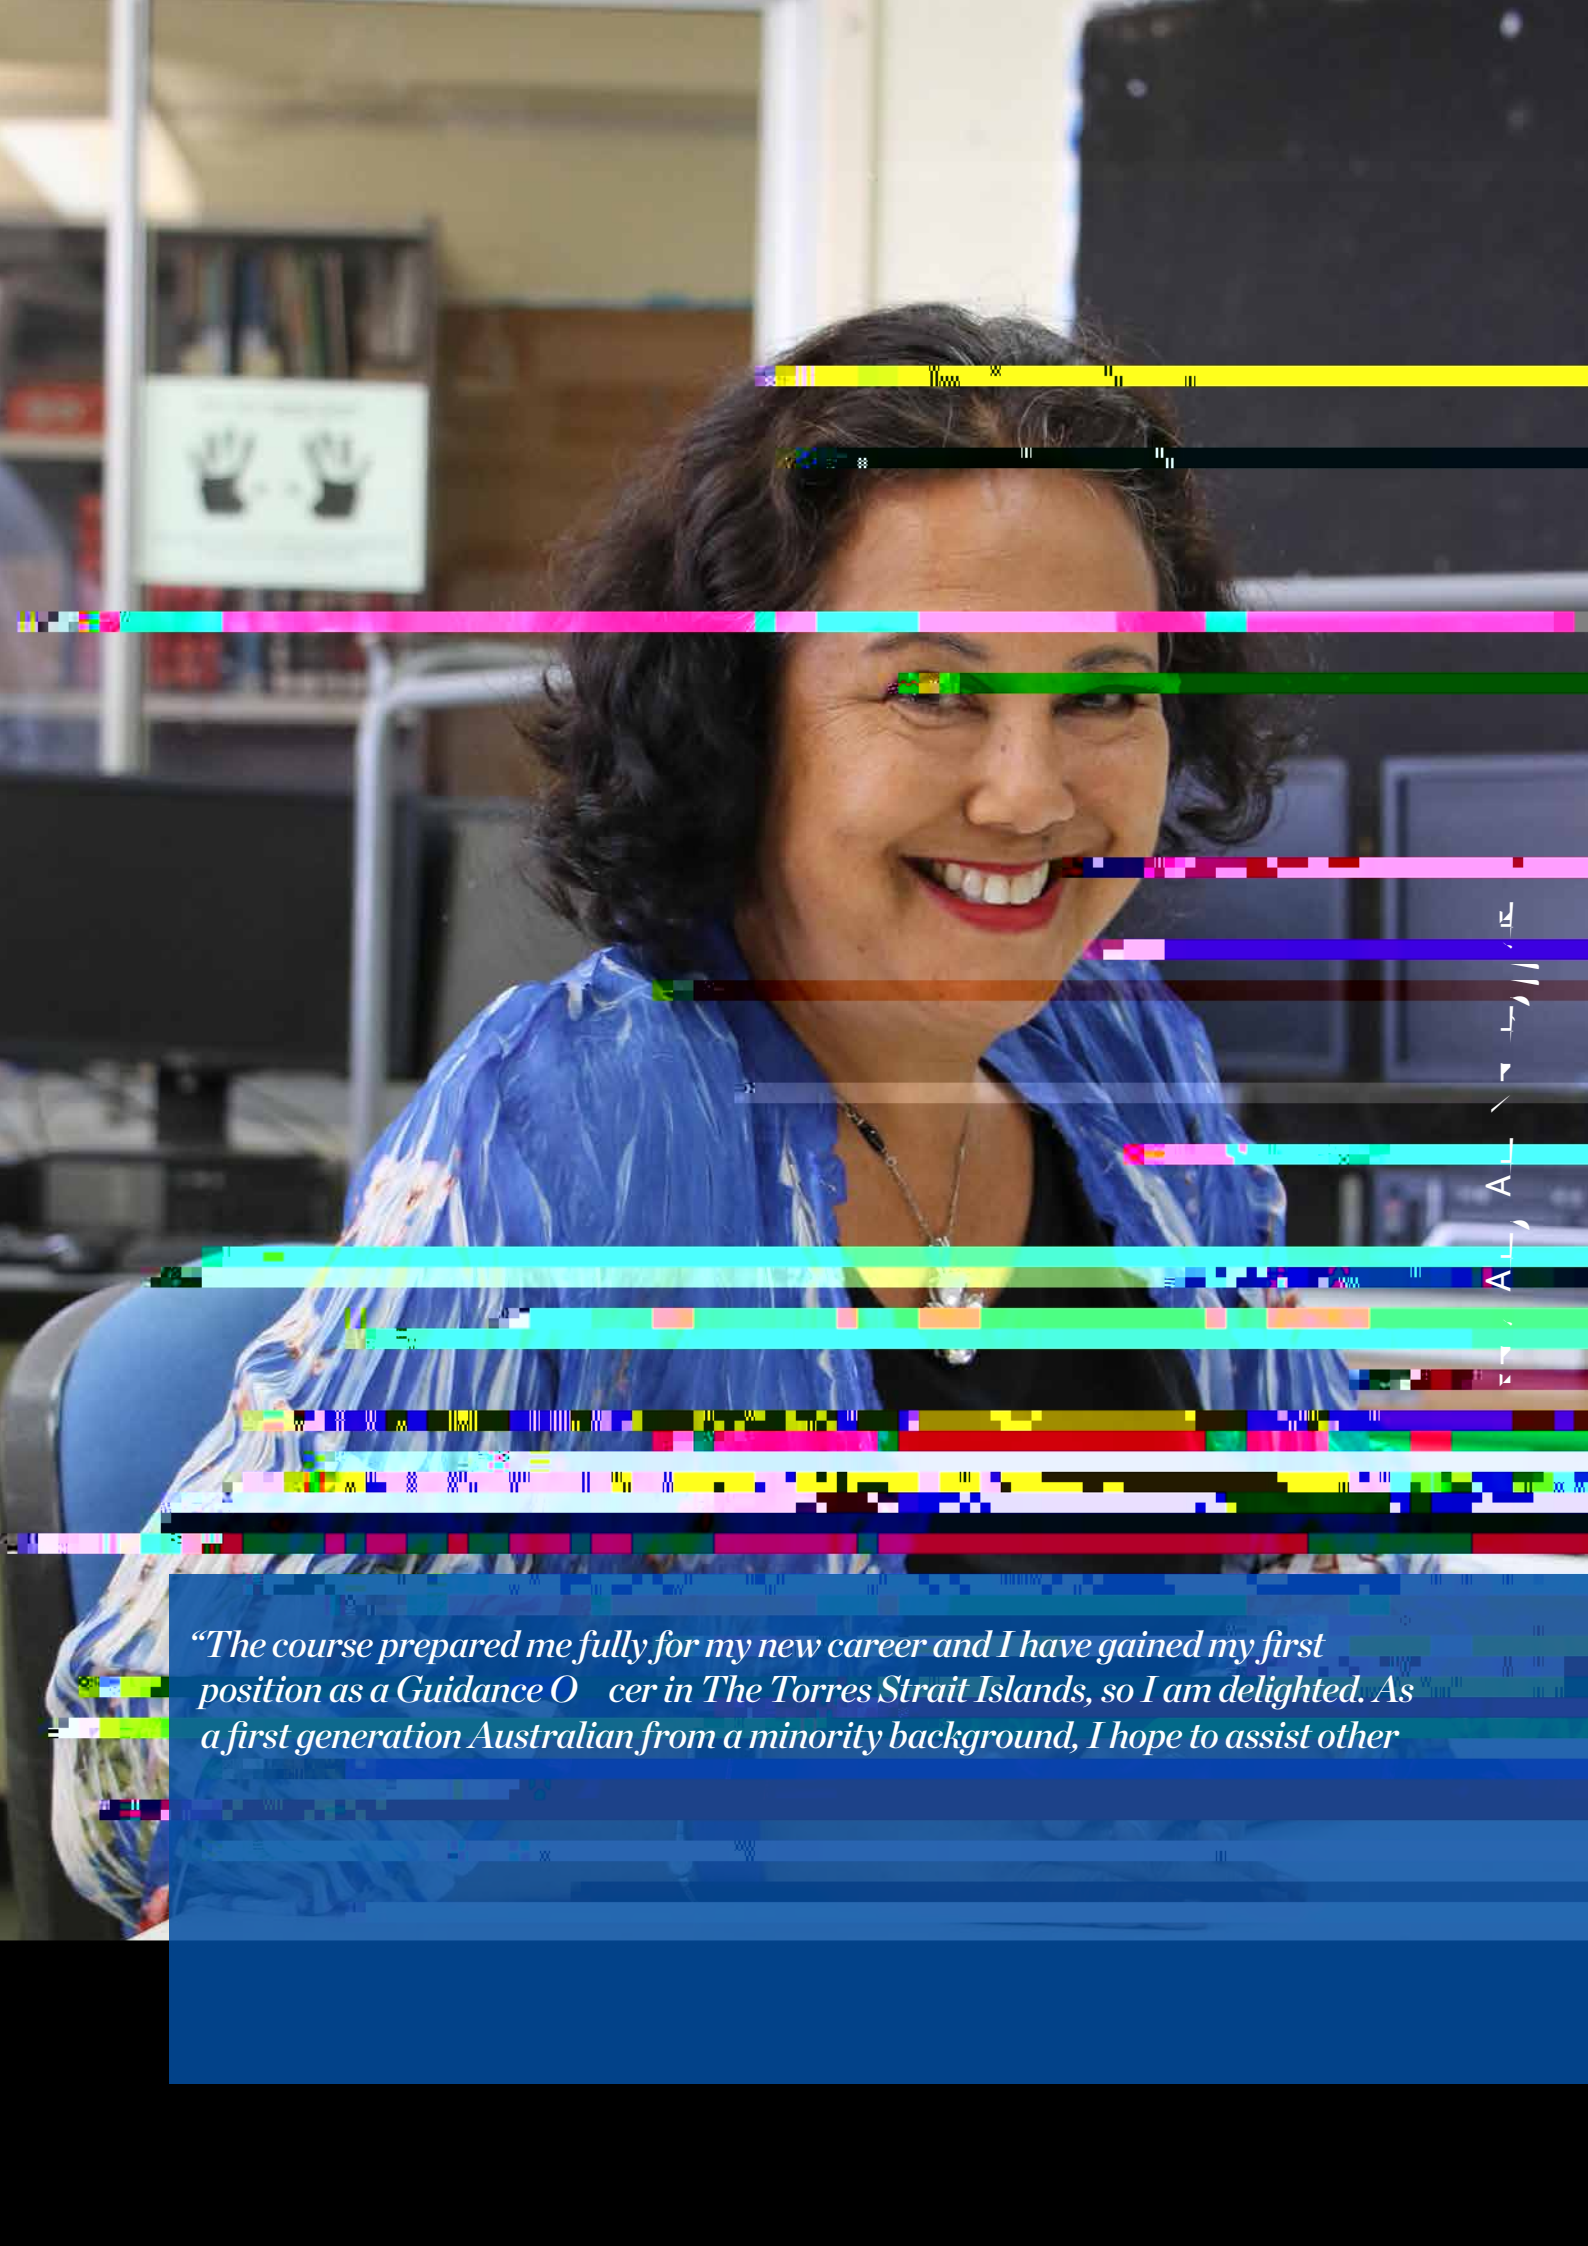

Master of Guidance and Counselling

✔ This flexible course can be studied full-time, part-time, online, or by limited attendance.

✔ Develop an understanding of how to practice counselling ethically and effectively within and beyond recognised sites of learning, including workplaces, communities and schools.

✔ Build on your professional knowledge and expertise, and gain real world experience applying your new learnings through professional placement opportunities. Participate in counselling placement at approved agencies or services.

Develop critical approaches to learning. With a focus on issues relating to the tropics, sustainability, and Indigenous, rural and

BY: ALI, ALI, ALI, ALI, ALI

“The course prepared me fully for my new career and I have gained my first position as a Guidance Officer in The Torres Strait Islands, so I am delighted. As a first generation Australian from a minority background, I hope to assist other

Career Opportunities

Diversify your teaching or human resource management expertise with a JCU Master of Guidance and Counselling.

You could provide specialist human resource management skills

Postgraduate coursework applications

Apply directly to JCU, either by a form you download, complete and return, or by using the Online Application Portal.

Your application must reach us before the deadline for your course.
your course.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

Postgraduate courses will usually require completion of an appropriate undergraduate degree for entry. You'll need to include certified copies of qualifications and academic records with your application. For some programs, appropriate work experience or equivalent qualifications will be considered.

FURTHER INFORMATION

To find out more, call 1800 246 446

